- After taking first loan and repaying it perfectly then the second loan is again come with some higher than first loan.
- If a person deposited for 6 month and didn't want to take loan at 7th month then he/she can continue his deposit for higher slab.
- If a person take loan and paying the EMI as well as he/she is continues there deposit then they will move to the higher slab in 2nd loan as per there deposit.
- If anyone want to withdraw is deposit he/she can but after 6 month *conditions applied

(Normal withdraw after 1 yr of deposit)

- From 2nd loan ROI is 1-2% per month and same % is goes as long as, can reduce according to your payment paid and engage with company.

Example:-

We are showing a small story of a person called Ram, who is a small business person but didn't have any documents for their business and didn't have a good transaction in his bank account. He heard about Greenbacks micro services foundation and contact them for loan and greenbacks caller inform him about product and by showing his family income he choose for 100/- rupees for each month,

CONDITION 1:-

After 6th deposit i.e...  $\text{Rs.}100 \times 6 \text{ month} = \text{Rs.}600/-$ , Company offers him a loan of Rs 1000/- which he has to pay Rs. 83.38/- per month for 12 months. After 12 month he had paid his EMI correctly then company again offers him a loan of 1200/- as on.

CONDITION 2:-

After 6 month he didn't required any loan at that time so he continues his deposit for 15 month as i.e...  $\text{Rs.} 100 \times 15 \text{ month} = \text{Rs.} 1500/-$ , now he required money so he applied for an loan and company offer him a loan of 2600/- at an EMI 216.68 per month for 12 month or he can choose for 24 month with EMI 108.34 per month.

CONDITION 3:-

As we see in condition 1 (After 6th deposit i.e...  $\text{Rs.}100 \times 6 \text{ month} = \text{Rs.}600/-$ , Company offers him a loan of Rs 1000/- which he has to pay Rs. 83.38/- per month for 12 months.) And along with EMI he is continues his deposit as i.e..  $\text{Rs.}100 \times 6 \text{ month} = \text{Rs.}600/-$  + continues his deposit  $\text{Rs.} 100/- \times 12 = \text{Rs.} 1200/-$  then his 2nd loan is Rs.2800/-

*showing example figure is approximate value, the amount will be given as per your engagement with company

FACING PROBLEM NOW DAYS

If you think to have a loan as personal loan you first chose to bank. Banks are always ready to give loan as personal loan, business loan, home loan, loan against property, loan against security, car loan, gold loan and many more. Now if you visit bank they first demand for your income proof and id proof but

You have only your id proof but don't having income proof, as for a small business person business id proof is an headache and little bit costly. So they didn't prefer to make that and as salary person as we know minimum salary is 20,000/- that a bank required, if you have all as income proof or business proof 2nd required is your cibil score or a good credit history if all things are ok then you can take a loan.

If you prefer to go through any loan agent or any third party company as per today's date all loan agent take or third party company will charge you some advance and after loan they charge for some percentage of loan amount it is somehow risky.
